CITY MISSION GETS MANY CALLS FOR CHILDREN'S CLOTHES

School Children beginning to Feel the Cold of the Fall Mornings Are Asking Mission For Help-Appeal Is Made.

The Superintendent of the Maysville City Mission reports that calls are now coming in every day for children's warmer clothing. The cold mornings are hard on the clothing which the poor children of the city have worn throughout the summer and the call is missioners for the purchase of a 12so heavy that the Mission authorities have been compelled to make a special appeal to the good people of Maysville who are more fortunate to help their less fortunate neighbors.

Bed clothing is also badly needed but the greatest need just at this time is warm clothing for children.

People of Maysville are called upon to ransack the closets in their homes for clothing that their own children have cast off but that would keep the poor kiddies warm enough to go to school every day. Shoes are also in demand and all sizes of children's shoes will be gladly received.

If it is impossible to deliver the packages of clothing to the Mission Home, the authorities of the Mission will arrange to send for them if you will telephone the superintendent.

Look into this matter today and make it possible for some unfortunate child to keep in school this sort of weather.

LEXINGTON TO ESTABLISH PIGGERY FOR REFUSE

ing System for Disposal of Its Garbage.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 23. - A new modernly equipped incinerating plant, costing approximately $20,000, with probably a piggery attached, to take the place of the present city crematory which has become old and dilapidated through years of use and too small longer to render efficient service is the latest municipal improvement proposed for the city of Lexington, and an option has ben closed by the city comacre tract of land on the old Frankfort pike, adjoining the city jail farm as a site for the new garbage disposal plant. In connection with the project it is also the plan of the city fathers for the city to collect its own garbage after the expiration of the present arrangements, instead of farming out the job by contract, as has been the custom for a number of years. A conference of Mayor Bradley and the city commissioners was held Monday morning, at which the plan was fully discussed, and at which it was decided to purchase from George Osborne and wife the tract of land comprising twelve acres on the north side of the old Frankfort pike, just west of the property of the Great Southern Refining Company and joining the city jail farm on the east, as a suitable site for the proposed plant.

Several days ago an option was se cured on this tract, which, because of its proximity to the city jail farm and its general availability, is regarded by the city commissioners as a most desirable location for the purpose for which it is desired. Commissioner Wood G. Durlay, who is custodian of all public property owned by the city, was directed to go ahead and close the option, which is taken to mean that the project which has been in contemplation for some time by Mayor present and a most delightful evening Bradley and the city commissioners, is Prisoners in the county jail adjoinng the courtroom joined the applause incited by the announcement of the acquittal. The room was crowded depite the late hour.

The trial started this morning. Few vitnesses were examined and the tesimony was short.

When questioned concerning the atal shooting, which occurred on June in a hotel room where Mrs. Beal asserted Anderson had lured her by promises of marriage, though he was already married, Mrs. Beal wept with her face in her hands.

"I came here from Springfield, Ill. o marry Warren," she testified. "He told me that he could not marry me, o I shot him."

Mrs. Beal slew the man she loved hen she realized that she was about o lose him, Anthony Nugent, an assistant County Prosecutor, said in his closing argument. He held she reeived inspiration for her crime from book named "Thuvia, Maid of Mars," which was found in her room after she had fired the fatal shot and attempted to take her own life.

The defense contended that Mrs. Beal was the victim of a "professional safe to say that Hughes is unique. love pirate" and held that she was emporarily insane.

As Judge Ralph S. Latshaw read the erdict Mrs. Beal leaped to her feet, vincing animation for the first time luring the rial. She turned to the urymen, thanking them.

Rupert Hughes Proyes Such a Production is an Outstanding Success.

One of the most interesting figures in the motion picture world is Rupert Hughes. He has proved that the "one man" picture not only is a possibility but a distinct outstanding success. #### IF THE FARMER SHOULD STRIKE

Governor Miller of New York thinks that if the farmers even "unionize and practice the methods of the unions, it will be a sorry day for the country."

What the governor suggests is surely not a pleasant prospect. Suppose, for instance, that the producers of wheat, corn, potatoes and cotton and other essentials of life were to conclude that because they were not getting a just price for their products, they would sit down Women Should Know How Lydia E. and produce nothing for a year.

Or suppose, that rebelling against the necessity of working long hours in the fields in the busy season, the farmers should determine not to wark at all, and should agree to live in idleness on common funds accumulated during better years.

The nation would presently face a famine. A mighty howl would go up from the cities against the treachery of the farmers. To interfere with the production of the essentials of life would quickly be viewed as a crime. Having control of the land, the implements and the necessary knowledge and skill for producing the necessities of life, to refuse to use them would be called indirect murder.

Yet capital and labor in the urban districts commit the same character of offense when they institute their lockouts and strikes and interfere with or cut off production of other essentials of life, and insist that they have a legal and moral right to resort to such means, with the view of forcing their own views in controversies with adversaries.

If the farmer talks of a strike, involving the depletion of the nation's food supply, it appears as a beinous offense. If industrial workers strike and cut off a necessity, it is the vindication of a great American right; or if an industry falls out with its employees and shuts down, it is only the exercise of the rights guaranteed to capital and property.

If a strike by the farmers appears such a beinous offense to the workers in the cities dependent upon them for food, why can they not see the same degree of moral turpitude in their action against the public at large, when they attempt to squeeze the public into an acquescence into their demands.

Fortunately, the farmers have not yet got around to the strike method. They are organizing to promote cheaper and better distribution, and seeking through co-operation to avoid overproduction and consequent unprfitable prices, but the farmers never yet have indorsed the idea of sitting down and doing nothing in an effort to force their views of crop values on the country.

To the farmer's credit so far, let it be said, he has never proposed to make the world go hungry or naked, in order to pile up profits for himself. The most that he has demanded has been a fair division of the products of his labor to which he is surely entitled-Houston Post.

WHY SHAKE THE DONKEY?

These are days of change and restlessness and change. Even the t cherished traditions do not seem safe before the resistless march of progress.

Of almost revolutionary character, it will strike many citizens, is the announced determination of Missouri Democrats to abolish the donkey as the sign and symbol of their party, substituting the goddess of liberty.

It is declared that the donkey is an undignified beast, while the goddess, whatever jibes may have been hurled at her since the advent of the Volstead act, is the embodiment of austere stateliness.

That may be, but it cannot be denied that the donkey stands for many things which the goddess of liberty cannot be expected to represent and that these things have always been looked upon as characteristic of the Democratic party.

For example, the donkey stands for firmness in opposition. Anybody who has ever atempted to force or cajole one of these interest ing specimens of animated nature to do anything it didn't want to do will testify as to the firmness of the opposition it can put up.

The donkey is notoriously proficient in the gentle art of kicking. And often, it has been observed, it kicks without good reason and when it would be much more sensible not to kick at all. Those who have observed the evolutions of Democratic congressional spokesmen during the recent session will at once be struck by the singular appropriateness of the symbil.

The donkey is a stern and uncompromising advocate of liberty and in this regard typifies the desire for freedom of action even more definitely than does the pictured goddess, the latter being static as opposed to the dynamic energy of the donkey in its desire for selfexpression.

On the whole it may be suggested to the Missouri Democrats that they would better let their symbol remain as it is. If for no other reason, because the people of the United States, who have been reared in the belief that any picture of dankey means a Democratic political itm somewhere, will never consent to regard anything else as symbolic of that organization.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

SANS TEETH, SANS EYES, SANS TASTE, SANS EVERYTHING

"The league still lives" asserts a Democratic contemporary, with an air of having said something to the discredit of the Republican party. The Republican party has done nothing to hinder it from living and working as best it can. We have nothing but the best of wishes for its success. But we declined to become a party to a compact that bound us to make the "supreme sacrifice" of national sovereignty. The Democratic party wanted to make the United States a subject of the league, to bear its burdens. The Republican party saved the United States from the catastrophe. The league just barely lives, having no bottomless treasury upon which to draw and having no members that are disposed to make it a vital agency in world affairs. The league was designed as a means of making the United States furnish the men and money to preserve peace and reconstruct Europe. We choose to let Europe take the first steps in reconstruction and manifest some disposition to encourage peace. We have never ben unwilling to help, but we always insist upon being the judges as to how and when and where we shall do the helping.

> AYETTE BOY STARTS UNCLE IN PUREBRED HOG BUSINESS.

Lexington, Ky .-- A good example of how funfor agricultural club work gets adult farmers, as well as country boys, interested in purebred livestock and better methods of doing things on the farm is to be found in the experiences of Clifton Ware, an 11-year old Fayette county boy, who is one of the charter members of a pig club organized in the spring of 1921 by County Agent W. R. Gabbert and the extension division of the College of Agriculture. The pig bought for $20 from Tow Powers, Crittenden, by Clifton at the time he became a member of the club already has returned him $70 and in addition he has the original gilt, four boars and one sow. #### MONEY SCHEME MAY BE DIVULGED AT POMEROY

Kraus, Nearing Death, Says She Her Whole Story.

Pomeroy, Ohio, Oct. 23 .- Mysteries of the Kraus financial scheme, particularly what become of more than $300,000, said to have ben borrowed from friends on unsecured notes, may be divulged tomorrow.

The story is expected to come from the lips of Mrs. Susan Kraus, who has been incarcerated in county jail here or neardly a month, during the early part of which she refused food and so weakened herself that medical treatnnnt has been necessary since.

Decision to tell her story came on Sunday evening when her physician Dr. J. A. Miller, called on her. She expressed fear that she was going to die, and said, according to Dr. Miller, I can't carry this load any longer, I must tell some one the whole story."

Arrangements were made today for attorneys for the posecution and the defense, with Miss Kenore Giles, court stenographer, to go to Mrs. Kraus' cell tomorrow morning to take whatever statement she desired to make. It is believed she will reveal the details of Louisville Bandit, Convicted Slayer of Alex Ehrler, May Die of Wounds.

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 23. - Monte "Tex" Walters, bandit, who was sent to the penitentiay here August 17, to serve a life sentence on the charge of murdering Alex Ehrler, dairyman of Louisville, lies at the point of death in the prison hospital from the effects of a wound received this morning as he attempted to escape over the prison

Two guards, "Hi" Baugh, of Shelbyville and Preston Thompson of Tompkinsville, seeing him climbing a ladder, opened fire, two shots going through the body, entering the chest and piercing each lung. Physicians entertain little hope for his recovery.

Walters' wife, who was here yesterday, was at the bedside of her dying husband today.

The attempt to escape was made at o'clock this morning. The prisoner had tied together the pieces of a broken ladder and was about half way ing shot. Not heeding this, he continned to climb, and the two guards let loose a stream of lead. Walters reeled and fell to the ground.

He has been unconscious since noor He has not made a confession to the shooting of Ehrler and has not referred in any way to his past history.

C. & O. PUTS EMBARGO ON COAL SHIPMENTS

An embargo on coal shipments over the Chesapeake & Ohio to points west of Ashland, Ky., became effective Monday. Neither coal originating on its own lines nor that from connecting lines, when destined to stations west of Ashland, will be received.

Officials of the C. & O. said that the embargo resulted from the congestion caused by the inability of other roads to accept westbound freight at Cincinnati, Toledo and other terminals from the C. & O. They expect the order to be modified or lifted by the middle of the week. The embargo does not effect coal at present in transit.
